“ So Sad to hear of Alma's passing but know she has been healed and is with the Lord. Whiie working in the nursery at church, she cared for my son and grandson. Miss Alma taught them both to sit on a chair and listen to the Bible lesson by the time they were two! She also cared for their parents and became a close friend to me.

As pages turn and chapters close in life, we reflect on the joy of getting to know people who come into our path. Through my family inlaw ties to Wanda and Bob Shores, I also got to meet Wanda's sister, "Nook," on numerous occasions. She always made me feel welcome in her presence...even through her reserved demeanor, she got her point across. She was inspirational to my granddaughters, Emma and Chloe Marshall, as they grew up learning from the older generation and the wisdom they possess. She was blessed to have Wanda and Bob so involved in her life and in her care until the very end...a big responsibility that made a huge difference in her quality of life. The family will feel her absence, but her impact will carry on through those she touched. Rest in peace, Nook.
